The Amazing Digital Circus: what it’s about

- Genre: Dark comedy meets psychological drama. Bright, chaotic circus visuals paired with real themes of trauma, identity, and isolation
- Premise: Trapped in a virtual circus that never lets you leave
- A woman named Pomni wakes up inside a strange virtual circus — and quickly realizes she cannot log out
- She joins five other humans, each now trapped in a cartoonish digital body, all stuck in the same place for reasons none of them fully understand.
- An AI ringmaster named Caine runs the circus, constantly inventing chaotic games and “adventures” to keep everyone occupied — whether they want to play or not.
- Underneath the bright colors, the show is really about how each character copes (or doesn’t) with being stuck somewhere they can't escape.

Setting

Characters

Pomni

- The newcomer
- The last human to arrive. Anxious and overwhelmed, she becomes our way into the circus's rules and dangers.
- She was an ordinary human until a digital copy of her was created by a brain scanner, where her copy takes on the form of a cartoon jester.
- Her human counterpart, Abigail Brooks, is a supermarket accountant and a YouTuber who explores urban sites with her newest friends.

Jax

- The (other) main character
- The Troublemaker
- A rabbit-like character who thrives on chaos and dark humor, and openly enjoys messing with the others.
- He's a lanky periwinkle rabbit with antagonistic tendencies who is a digital copy in the Digital Circus along with five other copies.
- n the real world, his human counterpart, Leeroy Mateo or Lee, is a young adult with family issues who ran away from home after pushing his mother. After months of being homeless, he moved in with a close friend and began turning his life around. He now works as a delivery driver.

Caine

- Aka: Creative Artificial Intelligence Networking Entity
- Caine is the circus's AI ringmaster: cheerful, unpredictable, and completely in control of the world everyone is trapped in.
- He invents the games and challenges each episode — candy-kingdom heists, haunted mansions, trust exercises — whether the humans want to play or not.
- He's not malicious so much as oblivious: he genuinely thinks he's giving everyone a fun place to be, which makes the situation feel even stranger.

Ribbit

A tall, lanky green frog character, close friends with Jax and Kaufmo before her abstraction.

She was warm, patient, and genuinely tried to reach Jax when he pushed people away, but the group's growing fear that she'd expose Jax's secrets slowly isolated her — and that isolation is what eventually broke her.

The subject of level 1
Objective: help her calm down from the conflict between her and Jax- dialogue options to meet threshold that determines the ending of the game

Kaufmo

A noseless clown who performed in the circus before Pomni's arrival, remembered as the group's jokester (sometimes to an annoying degree — his humor wasn't landing with everyone).

He became fixated on finding a way out of the circus, and that obsession eventually consumed him too, driving him to abstract into a monster that had to be locked away.

The subject of level 2
Objective: Find required objects to keep Kaufmo sane -to meet the threshold for good ending

- Ragatha
- The Caretaker
- A patchwork ragdoll who tries to hold the group together and keep morale up — often at her own expense.

- Kinger
- Co-creator of the circus
- A long-term resident whose instability hides important knowledge about the Circus
- Kinger is erratic and paranoid, derived from his time in the circus.

- Gangle
- The Performer
- A mask-faced character who swings between an upbeat public persona and real sadness underneath

- Zooble
- The Mismatched One
- Blunt, frustrated and resistant to Caine's forced positivity.
